Training Tails – New Year’s Resolution: A Healthier Dog by Laura Garber, CPDT-KA

With the holidays behind us, we’ve all packed on a few extra pounds, even our beloved canine family members. So, as you determine your own New Year’s resolutions, make sure that you consider making some healthy resolutions for him as well. Fortunately some of our everyday tricks make for a great workout and, given the cold and inclement weather outside, you’ll be happy to hear that there’s plenty you can do inside!

Indoor Activities

Tug: Tug is no doubt one of your dog’s favorite pastimes! Fortunately, it’s a great strength-building exercise as well as a fun bonding activity that we can do with our dogs. By holding the tug at head level, your dog is working out his rear legs. By tugging at ground level, he’s working out his front legs.

Caution: It’s important that you do not jerk the tug toy quickly from side to side or up and down, as this can cause injury.

Digesting the Ins and Outs of Canine Diet

by Laura Garber, CPDT-KA

Deciding the best diet for our dogs has only gotten more confusing as the types and varieties have proliferated. Commercial or home-made? Cooked or raw? Well, chew on this...

The Ingredient List on a Commercial Label

While there is a huge selection of foods out there, there are a few basic tenets which will help reduce the field substantially:

- Look for foods that have a meat

The Pooch Scoop – Eye Contact

They say the eyes are the windows to the soul. Well, eye contact can be a great way to strengthen the bond between you and your dog. Every time her eyes meet yours, say "Good girl!" and give her a treat. She'll start looking at you more often. Hint: Try smiling as you gaze at her... it will soften your eyes and relax your face, an attitude she'll definitely appreciate.

source (e.g. “beef”) first in the ingredient list.

- In dry food, a whole meat (e.g. “chicken”) contains a lot of water, which means that it’s ideal if the second or third ingredient in the list is a specific meat meal (e.g. “chicken meal”). If the only other animal protein is much later in the list, it does not actually contain much animal protein.
- Canned foods need liquid for processing. It is better if this be the second item (not first) in the ingredient list, and it’s usually tastier to pets if broth is used rather than water.
- Animal proteins tend to be tastier and easier to digest than plant proteins.
- Avoid foods that contain by-products (either specific or general) early in the ingredient list.
- Look for foods with whole grains and vegetables; avoid fractions (“brown rice” is better than “wheat gluten”).
- Some animals have adverse reactions to grains. If your pup’s stool tends to be loose or he has itchy skin, try a grain-free diet.
- Avoid foods with artificial colors.

Outdoor Activities

Retrieve: Playing a hearty game of retrieve has always been great exercise. You can expand on its efficacy by throwing uphill to work your dog’s hind limbs, and retrievals through water are a great full-body endurance workout.

Walkies!: Taking your dog for a walk is not necessarily beneficial if the walk is a slow saunter as he sniffs p-mail and leaves his own. In order to get cardiovascular benefit and build endurance, you want your dog to settle into a trot gait. Start your walk at a clip fast enough so that your dog needs to trot to keep up. After he’s settled into this gate, you can often slow your own speed and he will continue on at a trot.

Canine Sports

Sports such as agility, flyball, and winter skjoring are great sources of exercise for dog and human alike. Consider signing up for a class at a local training facility.

A Word to the Wise

Remember that outdoor activity is still an essential component of any exercise regimen, giving your dog a change of scenery, which is mentally stimulating, as well as burning physical energy. Consider your dog’s athletic program with the same caution and care as you would your own. As with any exercise regimen, start gradually. And consult your vet about whether there are exercises you should avoid because of your dog’s physical limitations.

Have a healthy, happy New Year!

* The DVD “Building the Canine Athlete” by M. Christine Zink DVM, PhD and Laurie McCauley DVM is a great resource for building strength and endurance in your canine athlete.

Featured Pup – HICKORY

Hickory came to the Town of Hempstead shelter a year ago as a stray from a local animal hospital. Playful and friendly, he’s a great favorite of volunteers and staff alike! He loves playing with other dogs and is often used as a puppy pal for dogs who need some education in dog play. He’s ready to make friends with anyone and everyone! He’s just waiting for someone looking for his brand of canine devotion...

Might you be his forever buddy?!
